America's Mass Killings

The FBI defines a mass shooting involving four or more victims. Mass shootings are becoming routine in the United States. Over 300 mass shootings have occurred since the beginning of 2015. According to CNN, over 400,000 people have died from gun violence in the United States between the years of 2001 to 2013, which is substantially more when compared to foreign terrorism attacks on United States soil. CNN reports that little over 3000 people were victims of foreign terrorist attacks between the years of 2001 and 2013. The United States is leading country in terms of most guns per capita. Gun control is a pressing issue that needs to be address within the U.S. in order to secure the safety people who call it home.
