

Northern Florida holds 10 of 12 of Florida's lowest concentrated retired populations, however there are only 5 public courses within those 10 states.

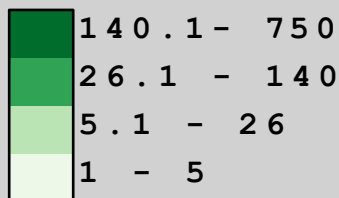

Pinellas county, home to Clearwater, and St. Petersburg, holds by far the most retired aged people per square mile with 748, 521 more than any other county.

Palm Beach County has the most total courses in the state, in fact it has the most total courses of any county in the country!

Florida is one of the most popular places for people to retire off to, and Golf is one of the most popular pastimes for the retired. The locations of public golf courses within Florida is important for people looking to retire away from the stress of their career because many other retired people are likely to live there!

Who's Golfing?

Retirement Aged People vs Public Golf Course location

- Public Golf Courses
- Major Florida Cities

Other than location of golf courses, the coastline also appears to be a big draw for retirement aged people.