

One Planet, One Ocean

Warm and Cold water currents wrap around our planet, driving everything about the land they touch. Warm currents drive nutrients into the deep, and cold currents bring them back up, providing lush habitats. As our climate changes, the line between warm and cold becomes murky. We must always remember: one planet, one ocean.

