From KTAADN, 1848

The last edition of Greenleaf’s Map of Maine hung on the wall here, and, as we had no pocket map, we resorted to a map of the lake country. So dipping a wad of tow into the lamp, we oiled a sheet of paper on the oiled table. Carefully following the outlines which the map contains, we resolved to face the island that Jocob Faith fancied, and, as we had no pocket map, we resorted to a map of the lake country. So dipping a wad of tow into the lamp, we oiled a sheet of paper on the oiled table. Carefully following the outlines which the map contains, we resolved to face the island that Jocob Faith fancied.